Hi Alex: I hope all is well! I appreciated your comments about stormwater and NPDES in the recent Commonwealth Magazine article!

On a different note, I wanted to touch base with you with some recent requests I received. I had the opportunity yesterday to visit with representatives of Toxics Action, the Silent Spring Institute, Breast Cancer Coalition, and representatives and citizens from Westfield and Hyannis. We were discussing our recent experiences with PFAS. As you know, we have been working with those communities and water suppliers since the UCMR process. They were interested in learning more about our plans for developing state cleanup standards and an updated health advisory approach (ORSg) for water systems.

In the course of our discussion, the representatives raised two things. First they were interested in learning more about the Region's work on PFAS – including the multi-bureau effort Deb has been organizing. Also, they were aware of the upcoming summit on PFAS that EPA is organizing in DC in May. They were inquiring about opportunities for the public to participate in that forum.

Mary Jones from Toxics Action was the organizer of our meeting. She and her group are interested in coming in to meet with you. I told her I would preview this request with you, and also highlight her group's request about opportunities for public input.

Happy to discuss further!

Best,

Marty
